THAW DEFENCE BLUNDERS

Demand U. S. Act in Mexico

WOULD SEND U. S. TROOPS FIND WOOD HAD MANY ACCIDENTS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—Senator Penrose today introduced a resolution in the Senate, declaring it to be the sense of that body that the President of the United States should establish consular offices in Mexico and place in them a sufficient number of troops to protect the lives and property of American citizens. The resolution also declares it to be the sense of the Senate:

"That it has been the policy of the United States to maintain the Monroe Doctrine;

"That the United States recognizes its responsibility under this doctrine;

"That there is internal warfare and lawlessness in Mexico;

"That the continuation of this war will add to the complications there;

"That the first duty of the United States is to protect the lives and property of its citizens at home and abroad;

"That the extension of such protection will lessen the danger of foreign interference; and

"That it is not the policy of the United States to aid or assist any faction."

Would Vote $25,000,000.

The resolution explains that in sending troops into Mexico for the purpose of protecting American citizens and their property there is no intent of hostility toward Mexico.

Senator Penrose also introduced a proposed amendment to the first deficiency appropriation bill sent to the Senate by the House providing for an appropriation of $25,000,000 for the protection of the lives and property of American citizens in Mexico and for other purposes pertaining thereto.

On the vote of the committee of the situation, both Senators Penrose and Lodge of the Foreign Relations Committee indicated that all matters pertaining to it should be referred to the Foreign Relations Committee.

The resolution brought forth a storm of protest from Senators who declared that the President was doing everything possible to better conditions and should be upheld.

With the exception of some diplomatic sniping and formal exchanges which have little to do with the main issue, the third mission to Mexico is ended.

Lodge Defends President.

"The President has been attempting in good faith and with wisdom and patience to arrange matters in Mexico," said Senator Lodge. "We do not know what will be the result of the mission sent by the President to Mexico. We have no official knowledge and we cannot judge until we hear officially the result of this mission. I believe until then we had better not debate the Mexican question. I am sure we are all of the opinion that the desire that there shall be no intervention and that the protection of life and property in Mexico shall be secured."

Woman Is Robbed on Own Doorstep

Mrs. H. P. Bagley of No. 31 Perkins street, East Somerville, was robbed on her own doorstep, according to her report to the police today. She got off a car at half past eleven last night. A man followed her to her door, she says, struck her, snatched her handbag and ran. The bag contained only 50 cents, said Mrs. Bagley is not hurt.

Commissioner J. F. Kennedy Dies on Ship

John F. Kennedy, schoolhouse teacher of Boston and one of the most widely known labor leaders in the country, died on board the steamer Florida today while bound from St. John, N. F., and Halifax to New York. He had been ill from diabetes and had gone to New England for his health. Accompanied by his wife and two children, he was returning to Boston by way of New York when his death occurred. He died shortly after midnight.

Mr. Kennedy was an exponent of the Boston Central Labor Union and also held high office in the Boston Ship Metal Workers' Union. He was labor representative on the Finance Commission that investigated Mayor Fitzgerald's first term. He was serving as business agent for the union of his calling when he died. He was a member of the Boston City Council some three years ago, and is said to have been one of the best-known labor leaders in his home city.

Polygamy Charge Denied by "Baron"

FITCHBURGH, Aug. 21.—Alfred Coppola, alias James Colletti, self-styled "baron," today entered a plea of not guilty in the Superior Court to an indictment charging him with polygamy. The indictment alleges that on December 20, 1911, Coppola married Miss Mary Waver, although he was married previously to Marie Louise Bergeron.

Violation Record.

William M. Wood, Jr., is twenty-one years old and his auto record, so far, is as follows:

August 11, 1906—Granted a license by the Massachusetts State Highway Commission to operate an automobile.

1910—License suspended ten days for driving an unlicensed person in his car, resulting in an accident.

April 4, 1911—Fined $20 in Roxbury District Court for excessive speeding.

Complaint of John A. McQuillan.

March 21, 1911—Found guilty in New York District Court, on complaint of John J. Satterly, of operating car without a license. Case fled.

June 14, 1912—Fined $10 in Roxbury District Court for exceeding and violating Metropolitan Park rules. Compliance: Ernest Glavin.

Lost His License.

July 1, 1912—License suspended on account of violation.

September 20, 1912—Found guilty, on complaint of Edward Glavin, of running car at unreasonable speed. One fined on his payment of $17.50 costs.

September 28, 1912—State Highway Commission voted to reinstate Wood's license in ninety days, following his filing written agreement not to run over twenty-five miles an hour.

October 28, 1912—Agreement filed by Wood.

December 24, 1912—Wood's license reinstated.

Gets a Year for Assault on Officer

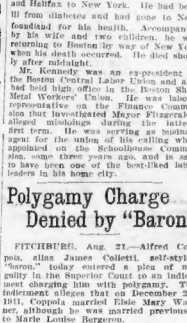

Alfred Carrill, the young man who most brutally assaulted Special Officer Francis Higgins, seventy-four years old, the officer at Dudley street terminal, was today sentenced to one year and three months in the House of Correction for assault and battery and drunkenness. One year was given him on the assault charge and three months for drunkenness. Judge Higgins of the Roxbury Municipal Court sentenced Carrill.

Seated Fetches $46,000.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—The sale of a seat on the New York Stock Exchange for $44,000 was reported today. The price represents an advance of $5,000 over the last previous transfer and is $5,000 above the season's low price.

THAW COUNSEL AND JUDGE

DELAY HEARING ON WRIT; ASK OTTAWA TO FREE FUGITIVE

SHERBROOKE, P. Q., Aug. 21.—"McKeon, K. C."—the greatest lawyer of Canada, has taken charge of the Thaw defense. His first move was to halt the habeas corpus proceedings. He said:

"Thaw's attorneys made a colossal blunder in seeking this writ. If it had been pushed, it would have delivered Thaw into the hands of the immigration authorities, who would at once have deported him."

ABLEST AND HIGHEST PRICE LAWYER.

McKeon has the reputation of being the ablest—and the highest priced—counsel in Canada. He plans to fight extradition proceedings. If he loses there, he will still have the habeas corpus privilege as a last resort before Thaw falls into the hands of the immigration authorities.

Once Thaw is seized by the immigration inspectors, it is believed he will be surrendered promptly to the United States officials across the border.

Worst Move for Defence.

The premature hiring of lawyers by Thaw has resulted in bad complications for his side, and until McKee arrived here last night from Montreal, the prosecution simply waited and the defense got in deeper and deeper. The suing out of a writ of habeas corpus is declared by McKee to have been the worst move they could possibly have made.

He is not going to proceed further with this line of attack. He says he will wait until his side has bettered itself before moving further.

McKeon has been given full charge of the defense. He will fight the charge of conspiracy which now lies against Thaw.

New York at Present Has No Claim on Him.

That he is recognized against Thaw, but if the contemplated habeas corpus plans had been carried out he would have been immediately arrested by the Canadian immigration officers and probably deported to New York.

Now a Waiting Game.

The game does not wish to burn matters, but are taking the position that Thaw is perfectly safe as far as New York authorities are concerned in a Canadian jail, and they see no reason why any move should be made until they are satisfied that it is for Thaw's best interests. In fact the situation has resolved itself into a game of waiting, her side being willing to give the other an opening.

Wait Action by Court.

Thaw will not be allowed to stay in Canada. This was made clear by officials of the Department of Immigration today. But that department will not make a decision until the habeas corpus and extradition proceedings have been decided one way or another.

A telegram was received at the immigration department shortly before noon from Acting Government Agent of New York State.

Acting Superintendent F. C. Blair of the Immigration Department replied that he could do nothing until the St. Francis District Court at Sherbrooke acts.

Attorney Shurtleff's Departure for Ottawa Followed an Altruistic Council of Thaw's Lawyers which resulted in the decision not to produce the fugitive in court today in the habeas corpus proceedings.

The hearing, which was fixed for 10 o'clock, was postponed until 2 o'clock on Judge Glensky's order. Counsel for Thaw declare they will seek a further delay until Monday.

Thaw was in an excited frame of mind and other an opening.

MRS. CARNEGIE TAKES $25,000 TO THAW

"Why," began persons admitted to his cell, "the situation was that the fugitive, Harry Thaw, was influenced by his condition when they decided that they would not produce him in court unless a bargain was made."

A new lawyer for the defense arrived on the scene early in the afternoon. He was P. J. McGuire of Montreal. A former lawyer will probably be retained by Thaw in the period of Mr. J. R. Hughes, who, while young, has a famous reputation. J. J. Greenfield of Montreal is said to be another addition to the array of Thaw's counsel.

Dr. Evans held a long consultation with Thaw. Afterwards Dr. Evans said: "Harry looks well, and we feel that his chances for liberty are good. The authorities are proceeding without haste and seem to weigh all facts from the single viewpoint of justice. Harry has not lost a square deal from the day that I was called here in a big hurry, but I do think it will be necessary to remain long."

At noon Thaw's counsel got together in the office of C. D. White, chief counsel. Mr. and Mrs. George Lauder Carnegie and Dr. Evans also attended. Mr. McGuire arrived just as the meeting broke up.

The Thaws are prepared to spend a fortune to save Harry Thaw from being returned to the United States. Mrs. George Lauder Carnegie, Harry's sister, who is here with $25,000 to begin the preliminary skirmish to save Thaw, has given orders that the least hint of a Quebec be retained.

Ready to Spend Fortune.

Mrs. Carnegie saw Thaw today and assured him that unlimited money would be spent to prevent his return to the United States.

Mr. and Mrs. Carnegie talked the case over with Thaw. He reacted quite very affectionately and after inquiring for his mother and whether she was coming on, talked over his defense with them.

Mr. McKinn, chief counsel for Thaw, advised that there be no hurry with the proceedings, as the Canadian authorities would not let American judges overrule their sense of justice. Mr. Carnegie is prepared to go to any limit in working for Thaw.

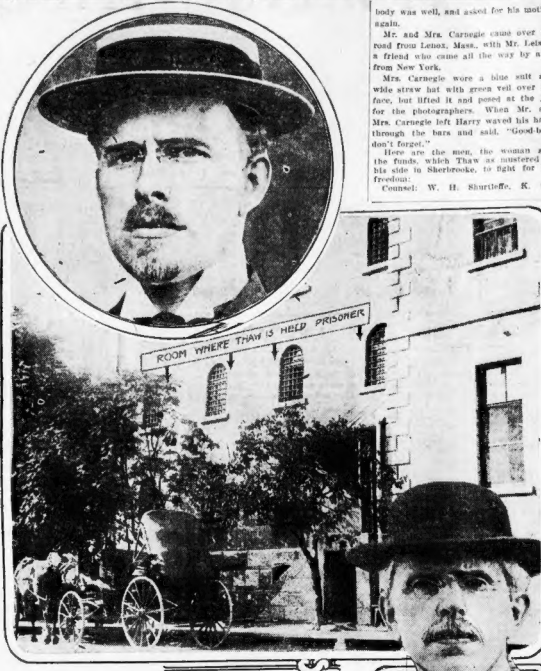

Dr. Britton G. Evans, Thaw's chief physician, says that no hurry will be made, as the Canadian authorities are going to give Thaw every chance. He does not believe Thaw's sanity will be brought into question in Canada at all. Should such an event take place it is certain Thaw would be adjudged sane.

When Thaw was informed of possible delay in the proceedings he did not seem vexed or annoyed. He is depending on George Lauder Carnegie to look out for everything for him. It is believed that some more will be brought unexpectedly and that Thaw may possibly be taken out of Canada today.

Kisses Sister Many Times.

Mr. and Mrs. Carnegie arrived at the jail at 9:25. Dr. Noel, jail physician, was with Thaw.

Harry threw his arms around his sister and said, "Hello, Margaret! How's mother?" Harry kissed her many times, while Mr. Carnegie looked on. Harry wanted to know when they left New York and how the trip was and if everybody was well, and asked for his mother again.

Mr. and Mrs. Carnegie came over the road from Lenox, Mass., with Mr. Lauder's friend who came all the way by auto from New York.

Mrs. Carnegie wore a blue suit and white straw hat with green veil over her face, but Miss Thaw posed at the jail for the photographers. When Mr. and Mrs. Carnegie left Harry waved his hand through the bars and said, "Good-bye; don't forget."

Here are the men, the woman and the funds, which Thaw was entrusted to his sister in Sherbrooke, to fight for his freedom.

Council: W. H. Burdette, K. C.

Charles D. White, K. C.; H. F. Fraser, K. C.; H. J. Holden, K. C.; Mr. McKinn.

Physician: Dr. Britton G. Evans, Inc. of the "human stem"; Dr. J. C. Noel, Dr. Thibault, Dr. J. J. Thompson.

Friends: George S. Leitch, O. Van Hoffman.

Relatives: Mr. and Mrs. George Lauder Carnegie.

Money: Two checks, one for $1,000 and one for $25,000.

Bosses: Thaw's mother, counsel and allies in New York and Pennsylvania are actively at work.

Harry Thaw goes early today in the Sherbrooke jail. He works at 6 and goes to bed immediately. After a talk with the cell physician and with his friends, he ordered breakfast. Here it is:

Stew, Eggs, Coffee and Biscuits.

After a long night conference, counsel for Thaw decided last night would not include the statement made in the Superior Court today on the well attested grounds of the Governor of the State of New York, Dr. J. J. Thompson, Dr. J. C. Noel and the sheriff were so notified and their plans for the safe removal of Thaw to the court house were dropped.

It had been previously decided to take him in a carriage. When the news got around that Thaw would not make the trip the hundreds of spectators gathered in the streets showed some disappointment. It was supposed that Thaw's lawyers did not wish to subject him to the danger of arrest by the military authorities.

THOUSANDS FOR THAW IN BATTLE FOR HIS FREEDOM

SHERBROOKE, Que., Aug. 21.—A temporary financial embarrassment that Thaw might have experienced has been relieved from two sources. On his second day here Thaw got an express order of $1,000 from his mother and the arrival of the Carnegie with a certified check of $25,000 indicates there is plenty of money at Thaw's disposal for his fight for liberty.

The determination of the fugitive to exhaust every agency in his fight against returning to New York State is made evident by his activity. He despatches telegram after telegram, and letters after letter. It was reported that he had tried to secure his freedom from the Secretary of State P. C. Knox and David T. Watson, the famous international lawyer, who argues the Alaskan boundary dispute for the United States government.

Ready for Long Fight.

Mrs. Carnegie, in an interview with the AMERICAN, declared that she and her husband were prepared for a long fight. She said:

"We are here to help Harry all we can. Neither property nor money to Canada. The trip would be too great a strain, and her presence is not absolutely needed."

Mrs. Carnegie has been Harry's guardian angel since his birth. She it was who engaged Dr. D. W. White, K. C., by wire to supplement her husband's counsel.

After parting of a busy meal, Mr. and Mrs. Carnegie went into conference with Thaw's attorneys at the Macao House.

SHERBROOKE, P. Q., Aug. 21.—Harry Kendall Thaw's own story of his chief reason for being from Mattawau, his sentiments toward Evelyn Nesbit Thaw and his hope for the future is given here.

Chief points of interest in his narrative are these:

"I hope to pass my future as a sane and useful member of society. I know I am sane."

"Dr. Austin Flint, William Travers Jerome and Mrs. Evelyn Thaw have nothing to fear from me."

"I fled from Mattawau because my wife returned to her stage life. That was the worst blow I ever suffered."

"Conditions at Mattawau were horrible. I was once but had as companions raving lunatics."

Thaw told his story in his roomy cell in the hospital ward of Sherbrooke Jail. From behind the bars he spoke. He looked tired. His face was lined, his eyes red, like a man whose of the wild for hours at a stretch. This may have been the effect of his wild auto dash across central New England from Mattawau, N. S. to Portland, Me.

Narcotics Detention Illegal.

Mr. Nesbit locked across his cell Thaw could look down on the streets and on the thorough which came and went outside the jail.

This is Harry K. Thaw's own story, as told from his cell.

I am being held here illegally. However, I expect to be free soon and to go to Pennsylvania. Why shouldn't I have escaped from Mattawau? I committed no crime when I took the action I did. I am as sane as anyone. I was legally acquitted of the charge of murder. But, if I had stayed in Mattawau, with all those raving lunatics around me, I might not have kept a balanced mind. Any man might have lost his reason if he had to live in such a place as Mattawau, surrounded by insane people. I was fiercely kept in company with them.

My wife might have stood it if I had not heard of Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw returning to the stage.

I lost all that is dear to me in the world. I lost the love of a woman for whom I would have done anything in the world.

Her same-old name—they tell me, is flashed in huge electric letters on Broadway. But I hear no malice toward her. To me, she will always be the dearest girl in the world.

I fled from Mattawau because my wife, Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, returned to her stage life. That was the worst blow I ever suffered.

I do not know that I will harm her. That is ridiculous. I have no malice toward Mrs. Evelyn Thaw. Neither is it true, as has been printed, that I would seek to harm Dr. Flint, Mr. Jerome or anybody else.

I have no malice toward anyone in making my escape as I did I have committed no crime. I was held at Mattawau illegally.

When I heard that she had gone back to the old life, I had to do something—I had to get out of the asylum.

Impossible to Prove Sanity.

Besides, I never seemed to me that I could be freed from Mattawau while I remained there. Was I not right in leaving? I know that medical conditions in New York were such that it was absolutely impossible for me to prove my sanity in New York State. You know that. Every official and newspaper in New York knows it. I could not get a fair trial in New York State. I know I am sane. I am willing to have a test made anywhere except New York, where my own word already be decided against me.

"ONE of the newest photographs of Evelyn Thaw. Do you think it looks peculiar?" It was taken when she was head down and feet up.

This photograph was taken when actress was rehearsing for her act on New York stage. It is one of the most unusual ever made.

One of your editorials carries me back to the first day after my arrest, when all the people were allowed to read real facts instead of fabricated interviews. I am exceedingly glad for the sake of my mother and sister, who have withstood all the trial with Christian fortitude.

For me it matters less, for I have lost Evelyn. Nothing can compensate for that loss. She has changed and gone back to her own side. Any person who is not loyal is no friend of mine, but I have no enemy for her, as she behaved splendidly in the days when your editorial was first published.

Confident of Freedom.

I shall be released and probably escorted away by the immigration authorities. I shall, however, win and gain my freedom.

I shall have my plan for freedom on the famous address made by District Attorney Jerome at my trial several years ago. Jerome declared during that speech that I was sane. Jerome ought to know what he was talking about. There had been a rumor that I might become reconciled to my wife. I will have nothing to say about that until later. I am feeling well and have improved wonderfully since my escape from the madhouse. The talk about my going to Europe is all true. It was my intention to go to Detroit, and after a rest to go to my mother's house. What my plans for the future are I cannot divulge. When the law is through with me I shall have considered the world that I am sane and entitled to my freedom.

I know that the public is with me.

"Love Me!—No More Than He Does a Stray Dog," Cries Evelyn Thaw

Harry Thaw has no more love for me than for any stray dog he meets in the streets. Love me. That is nonsense. If he loved me, would he have turned me drift among strangers in this city? Would he have left me penniless? Would he have disowned our child. We can never be reconciled.—Evelyn Thaw's reply to Thaw's declaration in Sherbrooke jail that he still loved his wife.

in my fight to be declared sane. I still a comparatively young man. I have still the usual part to lead. I want a future and I hope to use it as a sane and useful member of society. I want to be with my family again. I want to see the old place in Pennsylvania again. If my sanity line to be tested again, I want the test to be in my old home. I believe I can obtain fair treatment there.

Tell me, what is to this matter now? Why, they haven't got me arrested on any charge. They say I escaped from a penitentiary. I didn't. I escaped from that hole in Mattawau.

French painter, which won a Paris salon prize ten years ago. Many sketches by Thaw himself are here.

He is an emigrant from Italy, Hungary, Ireland, O. Henry, Hugo, George Barre McCormick and Anthony Trollope are represented in his title library. He has two huge bookshelves—one containing clippings concerning himself and the other filled with newspaper articles.

HARD WORK FOR THAW IF HE GOES BACK TO MATTEWAU

MATTEWAU, N. Y., Aug. 21.—If Harry Thaw is brought back to Mattawau he will find a different life awaiting him. Dr. Simon Kins said today he would be treating him as the most loyal and friendliest man in the institution.

No longer will Thaw be permitted to roam the streets of Mattawau Landing and Beacon City with his friends, and he will not even be allowed the freedom of his own cell, nor will he be set as one of the employees, according to the superintendent.

No more delusions will be received from him now. His apartment will be taken away from him and instead of the huge leather arm chair, the library table, the oil shaded lamp and oak bookcases, he will return to a room in Ward Five, containing a white iron cot, a pine table and a stiff backed chair.

Since the present superintendent took charge many of Thaw's privileges have been revoked.

"My only chance under this will be to escape while the door is open," Thaw is alleged to have told the proprietor of a Boston City bookstore.

Thaw's room at Mattawau is the most luxurious in the ward. The pictures with which the white walls of his room are decorated indicate Thaw's personality. One picture, which was removed from a room for a picture of Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw, was a copy of "Marguerite au Bain"—the work of a

When Thaw returns he will be denied five pence to the recreation yard.

He will become a member of a work gang, keep six or eight hours a day. He will have a guard in constant attendance and his hours of recreation will be spent at the side of a keeper.

"I have never allowed Thaw any greater freedom than the courts compelled me to grant, but hereafter he shall be regarded differently," said Dr. Kins today.

Thaw's friends evaded the point they informed him through messages. I know some of the employees here have been disloyal. Who they are I am striving to ascertain. But my chief concern now is getting Thaw back.

"I have great hopes that I shall inaugurate will set to work the duties of the guards that some will have the opportunity of becoming friendly with any one patient."

G. P. LAWRENCE LEAVES PUBLIC SERVICE BOARD

Former Congressman George P. Lawrence, resigned today as a member of the Public Service Commission. Mr. Lawrence had served but six weeks. His salary was $7,500. It is said he wishes to devote his full time to law practice, and, perhaps, become active in politics.

In his letter to Governor Foss, Mr. Lawrence wrote:

"I resign after a brief service, because I find it impossible to give to the duties the time required."

In accepting the resignation, Governor Foss said:

"I am sorry you find it impossible to continue the work of the Public Service Commission, but from your letter and my personal talk with you immediately following his receipt I am satisfied that your decision is final and I owe it to you to accept it."

Governor Foss, after further study, however, the hour that Mr. Lawrence would not retire from public life as the director of the State, he felt, would "come back in any office."

The other members of the Public Service Commission are: Chairman Frederick W. Anderson, W. A. Phillips, Clinton White and George W. Bishop.

SEEK FRIENDS IN MYSTERY OF MANICURE

Pending the report from Professor Whitney of Harvard Medical School on his chemical analysis of the organs of Mrs. Marie Bonheur Le Maître of New York, the authorities of that town pursue their further investigation into the life of the young woman who was found dead in her room in the Navy block.

Professor Whitney's report is expected to be two-fold, maybe triple. There will be a finding as to the presence or absence of poison in the vital organs.

There is the analysis of the hundred white pills of poison found, some in an envelope, some scattered on the floor of the woman's apartment.

There is, too, the analysis of the half-ounce of watery liquid found on a table near the couch on which the dead lay.

The police and county authorities are looking to relatives of the woman in New Bedford for information as to her domestic life in that town.

The inquiry also reaches Woonsocket and Providence, R. I., in efforts to trace the Rhode Island automobile in which Mrs. Le Maître had been seen once before, a week or so ago.

The police have traced Mrs. Le Maître on one ride in a Rhode Island car with a man companion as far as Providence. She left the car and man there and returned to Narragansett by train.

Quincy Man Succeeds Despite Judge's Refusal.

John Cook took out of the Quincy District Court today in order to lead in jail. John was up for intoxication. He said to Judge Avery:

"Your Honor, I wish you'd give me ten days in the House of Correction. All I want is ten days to reform in."

Judge Avery: "The best I can do for you is to discharge you and send you to the State Farm. I'll send you to the Farm."

Cook: "That being the case, I'll accept."

Judge Avery ordered bail of $100 and, as Cook didn't have it, he was committed to the State Farm to await the higher court, thus getting his desired jail term.

REP. THOMAS J. GIBLIN OF EAST BOSTON.

REP. THOMAS J. GIBLIN OF EAST BOSTON.

This is a Democratic member of the Legislature who has placed the welfare of his constituents above the benefit of the New Haven Railroad and his own private gain.

Mr. Giblin as a member of the Legislature refused to obey the hush of the New Haven Railroad when it demanded that more than half the trolley lines of Massachusetts be delivered up to its mercy.

He rather chose to follow the recommendations of the Tax

Commissioner, the Public Finance League, the Boston

Chamber of Commerce, the Interstate Commerce Commission and the faithful warnings of the Democratic Governor, based on party pledges and the welfare of the State.

When the Railroad Commission declared, "WE ARE OF OPINION THAT NO SOUND DEMAND EXISTS IN MASSACHUSETTS FOR LEGISLATION PERMITTING ALL ITS TRANSPORTATION INTERESTS TO BECOME VESTED ULTIMATELY IN THE HANDS OF A SINGLE CORPORATE AGENCY, MASSACHUSETTS, IN OUR OPINION, IS NOT PREPARED AT THIS TIME FOR A POLICY THAT RESULTS IN THIS METHOD OF CONTROL," Mr. Giblin knew that this was the same policy which his party platform had expressed, and it met with his hearty approval and support.

If the forty-five Democratic traitors to party pledges had followed Mr. Giblin's example, they would not be the miserable laughing stock of the State.

Woman in X-Ray Gown Detained

German Arrival Caused Near-Panic on Philadelphia Dock.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 21.—As she stood for a moment disoriented against a bright midday sun wearing an "X-ray" gown, the appearance of Miss Maria Mayer of Berlin, Germany, caused a near panic among the passengers, immigration officials and interpreters who met the steamship Casco, which arrived here from Bremen.

Two inspectors took one look and Miss Mayer was ordered to be detained. The reason was not given out.

Deny Hornblower Committed Suicide

Was Husband of Katherine W. Belden of Boston.

Friends of Lewis Hornblower, who married Miss Katherine Webster Belden of Boston, deny that he committed suicide in a hotel at Johnson City, Tenn. They say the shooting that ended his life was accidental and that he had no reason to kill himself.

Disputes from the Scotts say he was a desperado. A young man's father, Judge W. H. Hornblower, noted New York attorney, is listening to Johnson City from Canada to investigate his son's death. Hornblower was twenty-four and a graduate of Princeton.

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 21.—Today the Boston Red Sox will face the Naps in the first of the three-game series, this being their last trip to Cleveland.

The outcome of the series is being watched closely by the local fans and followers of the Athletics. They consider this a trying test for Cleveland. Birmingham expects to profit by the three games and close in on the Markwens, as he figures Cleveland's trip is about to strike some tough roads in Chicago.

In the other hand the Naps have taken twelve out of the sixteen games played with the Red Sox this season, the last series resulting in six straight defeats for the champions. Every fan of the Athletics is of the opinion that the Naps will have to produce some new lineup to be effective in this game.

The Sox, just come from Chicago, where they unconvincingly dropped all three games, two of the defeats being 1 to 0.

Fashions of the Moment

Charming Fall model in taupe cachemire de soie. The double band drapery on the skirt finishes in a heavy frill above the waist front and back, and the wide arm holes are distinctive features.

Two modern evening gowns.—The one of heavy brocaded black satin has a fish-tail train, and the skirt is caught in a high-split surplice to girdle that forms the foundation of the waist that finishes in shoulder pieces of black chantilly. Silver edges the scarf of black chiffon and brightens the gown.

The white gown has bolero of net done in an applique trimming of iridescent beads; this ends in a long angel sleeve design at the back and is weighted down by a huge tassel of the iridescent beads. The skirt has a drapery of the headed net—this starts at the left hip in a straight panel and is crossed by a draped panel extending completely across the front of the skirt.

If, maybe, a sad one lifts out of the glad ones, we forget it soon. Because we are saying "Hello." And if there's a bird singing anywhere we hear it. There is so much to do, so much to see, so many folks to like. The world seems suddenly like a rose and "full," as sweet-tempered R. L. S. says, "of a number of things."

THE DEATHS—The first circumstance which incidentally can develop in a marriage is the death of one of the partners. This is a tragedy for the man who wins a young and beautiful wife, and for the woman who marries an old man, and in all considerations for a woman, and in all considerations for a man, the death of one of the partners is a tragedy which he lived up to torture and suffering.

THE PAYMENT—It is a terrible thing—a thing so poisonous that it must make the very heart of a man and a woman beat. It is a thing which she lives when she is only seventeen years old, and the only thing that she can do to escape from it is to die. It is a thing which she lives when she is only seventeen years old, and the only thing that she can do to escape from it is to die.

Under such circumstances there are two things which a man and a woman can do. The first is to marry the girl, to do what you call a "marriage," and the second is to die. The first is a fatal mistake. It only makes a man and a woman live a life of pain and suffering, as it puts her completely in the hands of a man who is not a man, but a woman.

Opening of the "L" Arbitration
an Impressive Spectacle

The Proceedings Are Significant—We Need a Law Which WILL COMPEL SUCH Arbitration Between Public Service
Corporations and Their Employees

The opening statement of Mr. John P. Feeney, counsel for the employees of the Elevated Railway in their arbitration hearing for higher wages, was STRONG and IMPRESSIVE. The men have selected in Mr. Feeney an able trial lawyer, an aggressive, independent man, whose political sympathies have always been on the side he is now professionally espousing.

The whole opening proceeding of the arbitration between the railway and its men was impressive and FULL OF SIGNIFICANCE. The hearing began like a trial in court and with the dignity of a court proceeding. Mr. Feeney avoided any appeal to passion and tried to keep his feet squarely on the facts which were germane to the issues involved. The quasi-judicial board of arbitrators took a view of the men at their work in the car shops and elsewhere.

How different is this spectacle from the scene of a strike which these proceedings narrowly avoided. If the citizens of this community can imagine the business of the Metropolitan District PROSTRATED, the regular flow of our affairs STAGNATED, DISORDER and CONFUSION reigning throughout the city, our citizens divided into hostile camps according to their sympathies led them, the energies of the Metropolis paralyzed and its recent unusual effort towards industrial and commercial advancement nullified; if we can picture all this we can understand how SIGNIFICANT are these peaceful proceedings between the Elevated Railway and its men.

WE NEED A LAW WHICH WILL COMPEL SUCH ARBITRATION BETWEEN PUBLIC SERVICE CORPORATIONS AND THEIR EMPLOYEES.

We need also a law which shall empower the Board of Conciliation and Arbitration or some other public authority to investigate and to PUBLISH THE FACTS concerning every industrial dispute which takes on any proportions. The truth in these disputes is not difficult to ascertain, and the truth WILL DETERMINE PUBLIC SYMPATHY and public sympathy will determine, in most cases, the RESULT of the dispute.

Both the employees and the employers will hesitate to precipitate a strike when either side knows that it is demanding or refusing to grant what the public will quickly learn they ought not to demand or ought not to refuse to grant.

These are the methods of peace.

There Were Some Striking
Contrasts at That Essex
Republican Outing

The Republican outing at Essex County on Saturday presented some striking contrasts in the men who are offering themselves for the Republican nomination for Governor.

Congressman Gardner recognized the occasion as appropriate for a statement of the principles and policies which he believed ought to guide the State government during the coming year. As a Republican candidate, as a man who still clings to the reactionary drags of the old Republican party, as a man who has never hesitated to use his wealth to promote his political advancement, Congressman Gardner's speech must be regarded as surprisingly progressive.

There are two very important and significant features of Mr. Gardner's statement.

First, He recognizes that the people today want to vote for POLICIES and PRINCIPLES and NOT FOR MEN. They have been betrayed enough BY MEN, they have learned that it is impossible to judge the character of a man with satisfactory accuracy, that it is impossible to know what any man will do under conditions and temptations which may arise in the future.

Apparently Mr. Gardner came to appreciate that the people want a man who will be THEIR AGENT to carry on the policies which they have determined upon and not which HE may decide, after he is elected, are best for the State and INCIDENTALLY the best for HIMSELF.

Second, Mr. Gardner recognizes the importance of PREVENTING THE RAILROADS from owning the street railways. This is a significant admission from a prominent Republican. Not since Governor Guild's second term has any prominent Republican raised his voice against this railroad monopoly.

Congressman Gardner also declared himself in favor of direct primaries and squarely against the reactionary movement now on foot against the direct primary law.

By thus declaring himself specifically upon the issues of the hour, Mr. Gardner gives us his reasons for his candidacy and offers us an opportunity for a kind of initiative and referendum, indirect and cumbersome and subject to mishap though it may be, yet the best we now have under our present imperfect system of representative government.

Governor Foss spoke briefly. He offered himself to the Republican voters upon his record. That record is explicit, clear, sound and satisfactory. He promised to be true to it.

Thus he, too, offers the people of the State an opportunity to put into force those policies to which the Governor during the last three years has stood committed.

While Mr. Gardner is almost as explicit in his declaration of principles as the Governor, yet Mr. Foss has this great advantage over Mr. Gardner—HE HAS PERFORMED IN OFFICE, HE HAS PASSED THROUGH THE TEMPTATIONS, HE HAS RESISTED THE PULLING AND HAULING, THE FLATTERY, THE DECEPTION which beset a public servant who is obliged to deal with measures that affect powerful special interests. WE KNOW that the Governor will do what he says on these questions. Congressman Gardner has not been through the mill and we must take HIM on credit.

But what of poor Mr. Benton? What earthly excuse is there now for his candidacy? He presented a sorry spectacle at the outing. Apparently he has no principles and no policies. He is merely scrambling for a job or an honor in which to rattle around. The contrast between what he had to offer and what Governor Foss and Congressman Gardner had to offer was painful and pitiful. It would be an act of kindness for the friends of Mr. Benton to take him gently by the hand and lead him way back and make him sit down.

He has served his purpose. He has rendered the Republican party, perhaps, some service. Two weeks ago one of the most prominent Republicans in the State, in apologizing for Mr. Benton's candidacy, said that he was at least preventing the wholesale exodus of the Republicans to the Progressive party.

In that respect he may have served the Republican machine well, THOUGH HARDLY THE STATE.

Parental Authority.
There Is a Limit to
It. Grown Children
Should Have Right to Decide for Themselves.

By DOROTHY DIX

HOW far does parental authority go?

To what extent should a grown-up man or woman sacrifice his or her liberty of action, and possibly his or her success in life in order to gratify the whims or prejudices of an old father and mother.

I have a letter from a young woman, who puts this question in a very pertinent fashion. My correspondent writes that her parents are well-to-do, even rich country people, and that she prepared herself to be a milliner, and is an expert hat trimmer, capable of earning a good salary. Her father and mother refuse, however, to let her go and take a position in a shop where she could make the money to gratify her desires for good clothes and innocent pleasures, and they also refuse to provide her with the money for these luxuries. They give her nothing but her board in return for the work she does about the farm, and she has to make the money for the few clothes that she has by taking in ill-paid sewing and trimming hats for the neighboring farmers' wives. This young woman wants to know if she would not be justified in asserting her own independence and going away from home and accepting one of the many offers she has had to make her living in the way that is most congenial to her and best paid.

There Is a Limit to the Authority of Parents

Inasmuch as she says that she is twenty-seven years old and has arrived at years of discretion, if she is ever going to get there, I should say that she has a perfect right to follow her own judgment and inclination, and, as long as she does only those things that are true and honorable and of good report, to live her own life in her own way.

There is a limit to the authority of parents, and while the sacred obligation to honor your father and your mother never ceases, there is no reason why the prospects of the young should be blighted by a blind yielding to the tyranny of the old just because they happen to stand in a certain relationship.

When their children are very young parents assume the attitude of oracles to them. They are wiser than the babe, more capable of deciding its little problems than it is, and the trouble is that this oneness in most fathers and mothers a conceit that makes them believe to the end of time that they still are wiser than their children and perfectly capable of settling every question that comes up in their offspring's lives.

Nothing in the world is farther from the truth than this. Nature plays strange pranks in families, and many a dull, commonplace man and woman beget children that are brilliant, mercurial, restless, full of strange talent, and no more like their progenitors than chimpanzees are like dishwater.

How are such parents able to decide anything for such children? How are such parents to know what is best for such children?

What folly for such children to be bound down by the narrowness and prejudices of such parents, their ambitions thwarted, their careers ruined, because a stupid father and mother will not consent to a gifted son or daughter doing something which they never wanted to do!

Yet we all know men whose lives have been ruined, because when they desired to be doctors or lawyers their fathers forced them behind grocery counters. We have known girls that God himself made actors, or singers, or artists, whose genius was lost to the world because their provincial parents thought that a woman's "sphere" was in the kitchen.

Parents of Today Are

Unfitted to Direct Children

We have all known miserable men and women whose parents had separated them from the world and men they loved and married them to somebody they didn't love, because the father and mother were so certain that they knew the kind of a husband or a wife that Mary and John knew better themselves.

The truth is that there have been so many changes in the conditions of life and the point of view in the last twenty years that the parent of today is absolutely unfitted to decide the problems of life for the young man and woman of today. This is particularly the case with women, because the whole economic and social position of woman has been revolutionized since mother was a girl. Things that were considered had form then are good form now. Sentiments that were daring then are commonplace conventions now. An amount of education that made a girl a blue stocking then renders one only moderately well informed now.

Mother will not consent to her gifted daughter going on the stage, when she could make fame and fortune, because in mother's narrow prejudices the stage and immorality are synonymous terms, when the modern view is that morality is a matter of morals and not of environment. Mother doesn't think that her daughter should go into business because when she was young the working woman was looked down upon, when now it is just as much a matter of course for a woman who needs money to work as it is for a man.

Men and Women Have the Right to Decide for Themselves

Mothers think that her daughters should marry to please her. Instead of gratifying their individual tastes in husbands, and she forgets that her daughter should go into business because when she was young the working woman was looked down upon, when now it is just as much a matter of course for a woman who needs money to work as it is for a man.

All of this makes it utterly impossible for parents to judge for their children, and it is not right that the old should lay restrictions upon the young. Therefore, it seems to me that, after a girl or boy comes to man's and woman's estate, they have a right to decide things for themselves.

Whatever mistakes are made, they must pay for them, and they should at least have the privilege of trying to do the things they want to do.

Age does not always bring wisdom. It just as often augments and confirms stupidity and pig-headedness.

THAW

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

HE left the place where strange men dwell
In hideous harmony;
He left a ghastly, babbling hell,
And now men call him free—
For him who walks with a ghost that talks
There is no liberty.

He is not free whose mind retains
The memory of a shot
That made an evil soul take wings,
And left a form to rot
He knows but pain who shares with Cain
The murderer's awful lot.

He is not free who cannot dream
Of rivers and the sky,
Who asks no favor of his God
Except the wish to die—
For Dead Sea ashes wet with tears
Make soul-destroying lye.
